

BIO: Kuku Agami - Closure

Kuku Agami has proved himself time and time again as one of Denmark's most talented rappers, with potent live performances and ferocious freestyles.

Kuku hails from Lado, Central Africa but resides in Copenhagen Denmark where he was born in exile and is still a political refugee (stateless citizen). Due to the instability of the region and his family's political position and status. Kuku's father holds the title of Agofe of Lado, meaning King of Lado!

Burdened by all this at a young age Kuku would soon find an escape in rap music and the hip-hop movement joining the group QED, at the age of 12. Where he would make a name for himself as the group's underground success grew.

Kuku's debut on record came when he featured on 3 songs off his older brother's award-winning album "Covert Operations". He would go on to tour with his brother for the next couple of years, performing in Denmark, Norway and USA.

In between touring, he still managed to keep his name hot on the underground scene, performing and recording songs for different hip-hop compilations. One of them being Drop Deads "Hip-hop til folket". The song, "Dayz go by", which he recorded for that album, would catch the attention of the Danish super production duo "Soulshock n Karlin" (2Pac, Mary J, Whitney Houston etc). They signed him to their Soulpower records label based in L.A.

Even though the album he recorded for Soulpower was never released, Kuku still feels he gained worthy experience recording in the states.

After returning from the US, Kuku quickly went on to become a household name, as one of the leading members of ZKB. A band that featured on the hit TV show, Venner for livet (Friends for ever), which ran for 1 and a half years. Kuku released 2 albums with ZKB, selling over 100,000 albums in total.

Besides making music, Kuku has used his status as a household name to help raise funds and awareness for the Danish Red Cross, Unicef and The Danish Aids Fund.

He has also dabbled in a bit of acting at the Royal Danish Theater accepting a role in the play "San Diego", showcasing not only his versatility, but also a talent for acting.

He has spent the last couple of years touring with Danish acts, The Loft, Danish RnB star Ida Corr and Sweatshop hip-hop/soul group of which he is one of the members.

Currently Kuku is running a monthly hip-hop club at Vega, one of DK's biggest and innovative music venues. He has also recently landed another acting role in "Festen", a theatrical adaptation of Thomas Vinterberg's internationally acclaimed and award-winning movie. But music is his greatest passion and as we speak, he is finishing up material for his forthcoming album.
